SMITH'S KIDNEY TONIC—TRY IT.

Gen. Grant's book says: "Gen. Grant did not rely upon his recollections for his facts. He had twenty or thirty large business ledgers filled with data. These books were left by his military secretary during the war, and contain in full his dispatches and orders copied on the day they were sent or given. One interesting relic, which I have obtained for the book, and which has not yet been seen by a newspaper man, is one of the manifold copies of the letter of terms he wrote to Gen. Lee at Appomattox court house. It was difficult to obtain, and will rehabilitate an important fact in his history."

The Old Homestead. POINT PLEASANT, O., July 27.—Michaels, Hensch, owner of the old house where Gen. Grant was born, has three propositions for the purchase of the building, one of which is from a committee of gentlemen living in this Cincinnati county, who wish the house to be kept where it is, and another from the Union club of Philadelphia, who, if successful, will have it removed to Philadelphia, to be permanently located in Fairmount Park. It is a single story house and could easily be transported on cars. Last fall it presented over repaired the building to some extent, but the framework and foundation are just as they were sixty-three years ago. The third proposition is from a Cincinnati gentleman, who will, if he succeeds in purchasing the building, have it removed to Eden Park, Cincinnati.

The "Old Guard." NEW YORK, July 27.—The World says: "The 'Old Guard,' or as more familiarly known, 'The 300,' delegates who, in 1822, sold as a rock at Chicago for the nomination of Gen. Grant to a third term as president, will probably attend his funeral as an organization. An effort will be made to get as many of the 300 together on the day of the funeral as possible. Among the delegates from this state who voted for Gen. Grant, first, last and all the time were Rose Connelley, Alonzo B. Cornell, Charles A. Arthur, Edward Pierpont, Levi P. Morton and Thomas C. Platt. They each received a bronze medal commemorating their steadfastness to the cause."

General Hancock to Charge. NEW YORK, July 27.—Gen. Hancock has received instructions from the secretary of war to take entire charge of the military arrangements connected with Gen. Grant's funeral. All military organizations wishing to participate in the ceremonies must apply to him for assignment.

THE BANDIT KING.

Ramon Trevino and His Gang of Thieves and Murderers.

FIEDRAS NEGROS, Mexico, July 27.—Officials of the Mexican national railroad a few days ago received notice through a secret source that an attempt would be made to rob the pay train in its next trip out of the gang of bandits and outlaws who under the leadership of Ramon Trevino from San Juan d'Alfende.

The officials sent out a heavily armed guard on the pay train, and they were not molested. Since the return of the pay car Trevino's gang overtook the train and drove a guard of five men with a wagon load of merchandise, and, tying the driver to a tree, coiled drove the wagon away. Three of Trevino's men have since been killed. Ramon Trevino has become one of the most daring bandits that have infested this country.

DIED OF THIRST.

Walter Gabriel Wanders Over the Alkali Plains of Utah for Water.

SALT LAKE, Utah, July 27.—Walter Gabriel was found dead, on Carson desert the 26th instant. He started July 17th from Salt Lake water to look for Lovelocks with another man. Getting out of water his companion rushed on to Lovelocks, where he notified the sheriff and coroner of Gabriel's being alone on the road. They found his remains about twenty miles from Lovelocks, and said some tobacco about five miles from the body. He had a hard struggle for life hunting for water, and finally turned back and traveled five miles, when he crawled under a sage bush and died.

They found $110, a pass from Havre to New York, July 27, 1885, and a watch about thirty-five years old and unmarred. A letter from his brother dated St. Louis, July 18, 1885, was found on his person.

INDIAN OUTRAGES.

Miners Returning From War Attacked and Killed by the Apaches. TUCSON, Ariz., July 27.—A letter from Professor G. Gunn, dated Pinal, Sonora, Mexico, July 21, says: "Four American miners coming from St. Helena mine were attacked by the Apaches. One man named Gillan was killed and one other wounded. The other two succeeded in reaching one of our company's mines and the party was immediately organized to go and bring in the body."

"When they reached the spot they were surprised to find two dead men. The second was recognized as Gen. Pequeiras, mayor of Donon of the Mexican ranch, who it is supposed was returning home. Gillan was buried with military honors, he having been a captain in the Union army."

CHICAGO, July 27.—William Sears, treasurer of the Chicago Association of Miners, is missing, and nearly five thousand dollars of the funds of the association, is said to have gone with him. The books are in a dreadfully mixed condition, and the treasurer's honesty is a total surprise to the organization and leaves their treasury in a bad condition.

The Very Short Stay of the Princess—Death of the Conservatives on a Medical Bill—A Sculptor and a Suicide. A Very Big Scandal—Notes.

LONDON, July 27.—The hitherto more rumors that the royal marriage is regarded with extreme disfavor at the German court, and that the crown princess protest against the alliance is officially confirmed, for in the state account of the ceremony, supplied by the queen, through the court newsmen, to all the press and the Court Gazette, the list of royal persons invited to the ceremony omits the name of the queen's eldest daughter, nor indeed was an invitation sent to any member of the German reigning family. Moreover, the Princess and Princess of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh preferred to remain on board their yachts at Cowes during their visit to the Isle of Wight, and did not attend the ceremony, and immediately returning to their yachts and steaming away at midnight after the fireworks.

Tories Defeated.

LONDON, July 27.—The government was defeated in the house of commons by a vote of 181 to 130 on a clause of the medical relief bill. The Parliaments opposed the government. On the announcement of the result of the division the minister held a hurried consultation and Sir Michael Hicks Beach announced that the government had requested the resignation of the bill. Sir William Harcourt immediately accepted the responsibility on behalf of the opposition. The discussion of the bill was then continued. Mr. Childs moving the amendments put down in the name of Mr. Ballour, who had charge of the bill.

The Journal de Saint Petersburg says the alarmist reports originating in London relative to Russia's intentions in Afghanistan have failed to elicit sympathy in Europe. Any grievances alleged in behalf of England are completely ignored. The journal receives a chilling response, and this facts shows that the sympathies of the Continent are not for the policy of the Conservative government of England.

The treasury is investigating its coinage to determine whether or not there is a surplus of production. HE FOLLOWED OBLUM.

MYSTERIOUS EPISODE WHICH THE POLICE CANNOT SOLVE.

The Passengers on a Fulton Ferry-Boat Started by Seeing a Man Leap From the Big Structure Into the Water. The Police Did Not See Him.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The ferry-boat Union left the foot of Fulton street at 9:48 o'clock. When she had swung out into the stream a shout was heard, followed by a splash in the water. Some one shouted that a man had jumped from the bridge. The passengers made a rush for the stern of the boat and looked to see the man rise to the surface. Several minutes passed, but nothing appeared. The boat put back and was made fast to the slip. The passengers hurried ashore and ran down the pier to the bridge tower, where the Erie annex boat lay. They remained there a long time gazing at the water, but nothing resembling a human being appeared.

At the bridge police station nothing was known of the alleged suicide. Roundman Hayes, who was stationed on the bridge at the time, denied emphatically that any such thing had occurred, and said if it had he would certainly have heard of it. He added: "Patrolman Kenney and myself were standing within forty feet of the Brooklyn tower, and at the time were looking down at an excursion that was just passing Jewell's wharf. All of a sudden we heard a cry and a moment later heard a splash near the ferry-boat Union. We both turned our eyes in that direction and saw by the ripples where something had disappeared beneath the surface of the water. We watched for its appearance again but it failed to come to the surface. That is all I know about it. I am sure no one could have jumped from the bridge without my knowledge."

Fulman Kenney corroborated the roundman's story and added that if any man had fallen into the water at that spot the undercurrent would have carried the body a great distance before it came to the top.

Mrs. Lallity, who is employed on the ferryboat, said: "I was standing on the stern of the boat when a boy cried out: 'There's a man going to jump from the bridge.' I at once looked up, and as I did so, I saw a man dressed in white. He was either in a bathing suit or in his underclothing. He had already jumped and was half way down when I saw him. Before I could scream he had struck the water and disappeared from sight. I then screamed, and the passengers came rushing back to where I stood. I looked for a long time but did not see him picked up, although there were several tugboats around looking for the body."

The baggage master of the Erie Annex said that he was on the dock busily handling freight when one of a crowd of passengers rushed down the pier and exclaimed that a man had jumped from the bridge. Some of them said positively that they had seen him jump. A few moments later a tug boat swung in near the dock and the captain hailed him with: "Did you see that man jump from the bridge?"

He replied that he had not.

"Well, we did," shouted the deck hands on the tug.

Several other persons positively assert that they saw the man jump. There are several theories advanced as to whether it was a man who jumped from the bridge or a dummy thrown from a passing vehicle by some practical joker. As yet no trace of the supposed jumper's body has been found.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Mr. Vilas Refutes a Traveling Rumor—Appointments—Notes.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Postmaster General Vilas said that there was no truth in the story that he had prepared a supplement to circular or distribution among congressmen relative to the removal of postmasters in different parts of the country. The president and himself were in earnest about carrying out the policy laid down in the letter of December 23, 1894, relative to the tenure of office, and this course would be carried out strictly.

In the circular which had been so much talked about several weeks ago there was no intention to precipitate removals, but several Ohio congressmen were communicated with so that action might be taken on certain cases within a specific time. That was all there was to it, and no other circular would be sent out because they were deemed unnecessary.

Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The president has made the following appointments: Colin F. MacDonald, receiver of public money at St. Cloud, Minnesota. Indian agents—Joseph B. Kinney, for the Uintah agency, in Utah; Thomas Jennings, of Wisconsin, for the Green Bay agency, in Wisconsin.

Governor Sprague's Boy

Grows Up Like a Weed—Marries His Step-Mother's Sister.

NARRAGANSETT, R. I., July 27.—When Miss Kate Chase Sprague, daughter of the late Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase secured a divorce from her husband, ex-Governor Wm. Sprague, she also secured the custody of her three youngest children, Ethel, Kate and Portia, while the oldest child and only son, elected to remain with his father.

Within a year or sixteen months after the divorce Governor Sprague married a young woman from West Virginia. Willie Sprague has been allowed to grow up almost without attention. The announcement was made that he was married on Thursday to Miss Avis Weed, the sister of his father's wife.

The young couple returned here and announced themselves as man and wife. The governor and Mrs. Sprague are reported as content over the match.

Fatal Runaway.

DENVER, Col., July 27.—Mrs. Proteau, wife of J. W. Proteau, a wealthy Englishman residing in Denver, was so badly injured in a runaway accident that she died. Mrs. Proteau was living in a house of ill-fame when she met and married her husband, who, as an agreement to the marriage, placed a large sum of money to her credit in a bank. Although well-demonstrated herself since her marriage, she has been enjoying the luxurious life which her money enabled her to do.
